

Reboot helps communities expand our collective imagination, find common cause, and craft a world rooted in care.

Our partners include community groups, grassroots activists, academics, movement organizations, nonprofits, private foundations, businesses, governments, and international agencies. The common thread between them? A commitment to structural justice.

LEARN MORE

Our work.

Systemic problems require systemic approaches. We work with partners to grapple with the debates at the heart of complex challenges, form unlikely coalitions to co-create courageous new solutions, and define the roadmaps to turn bold visions into lived reality.

LEARN MORE

Reframe

issues by examining past and present inequities, and surfacing new opportunities for transformation.

+ Challenging Development Orthodoxy to Empower Marginalized Populations

+ Reframing Corruption to Drive Accountable Public Spending

Reimagine

possibilities through new perspectives, and co-create interventions beside those with most at stake.

+ Centering Citizens in Open Data Government Visions

Remake

policies, programs, and services to tackle root challenges and ensure forward solutions are just.

+ Setting Up Post-Revolution Democratic Infrastructure

+ Co-Creating Just Approaches to Criminal Justice

Reorient

the organizational compass, processes, and culture to deliver on aspirations and commitments.
+ Advocating for Decolonial Approaches to Movement Support

Our ideas.

We are actively engaged in the dialogue and debates of our space. Read more about our values and our work.

LEARN MORE

Introducing Design With: A Reboot Podcast Series

Last year, we hosted four incredible interviews with folks driving radical collaborations across the globe. Our world has transformed so much in the time since, but the wisdom of these great leaders sustains. Take a listen.

MORE

A Call for Radical Transformation

PANTHEA LEE

In recent conversations with Reboot's allies near and far, we've noticed that most of us aren't satisfied working solely on immediate response and recovery. We want moral and structural transformation at scale. But the only way we can make it happen is together.

MORE

It Is Time to Reclaim Our Future

PANTHEA LEE

The COVID-19 crisis has presented a profound and urgent moment for communities to seize power and, in doing so, to reshape society. We must reject elite control of our future, and embrace radical new ways of envisioning and building society, from the ground up.

MORE

Our partners.

We have worked with changemakers across diverse sectors in over 40 countries.

